Circleville Water Rate Case Delayed Ten Days

OFFICIALS OF COMPANY FAIL TO GIVE DATA

And Extension of Time Is Granted In Order To Complete "Figures."

Officials of the Ohio Water Service company, meeting with City Council in a special session Thursday at 7:30 p. m., and with a group of interested citizens present, were granted from a week to 10 days' delay in presenting their case to the legislative body when E. C. Elliott, of New York, vice president of the company, said he had not sufficient time to prepare all the figures needed to show what the company is earning and has been earning.

It is expected—and hoped—these figures will be available within 10 days so the matter of an equitable rate adjustment can be again taken up by the city.

The meeting Thursday night was a short one and it is understood officials of the water company and a number of councilmen spent considerable time before the session opened, wrangling whether the meeting should be a public one or not, councilmen and attorneys for the city favoring making it an open meeting, while officials of the water company sought to have it a closed one.

What little did take place at the session was finally opened to the crowd gathered in the Council chamber.

Mr. Elliott, in a short plea before Council asking an extension of time, declared that prior to this spring the Ohio Water Service company's branch in Circleville had been operated as a part of the Washington C. H. plant, and that it would be necessary to segregate these figures of each plant before a true analysis of what the Circleville plant was earning could be arrived at.

"We have been unable to do this in the time since we started the work," he said, "but we will have the figures and all data available within a week or 10 days when I will come back here from New York and meet with you."

Mr. Elliott was the only speaker of the evening. The city, neither through its attorneys in the case, C. A. Lelst and Charles Dresbach, nor any of its councilmen, presented any public argument further in the case.

Council voted to give the water company the time asked and it will again take up the matter of lower rates within the 10-day period, it is anticipated.

GORDON TEMPLE IS STRUCK BY MACHINE

Gordon Temple, 16, of Circleville, was painfully injured in Columbus, Thursday afternoon, when he was knocked down by an auto driven by H. D. Murphy. The accident occurred at the corner of Fulton and Fourth-sts. Young Temple had suddenly run into the street to retrieve his hat, which the wind blew away, when the machine hit him.

He was attended at St. Clair hospital where he was found to have a number of severe cuts and bruises.

ATTEMPTS TO LIFT CHAIR BREAKS LEG

John Maley, 65, while attempting to lift a chair from the ground up to the porch at his home in Williamsport, fell and sustained a fracture of his leg.

He was taken to Mt. Carmel hospital by Dr. D. H. Marcy.

WILLIAMSPORT HEAD OF SCHOOLS RESIGNS

J. F. Koeppel of Belle Valley, who was elected as superintendent by the board of education of Williamsport at a meeting held June 29, has resigned.

He stated that he had secured a better position in Portage-co., at a larger salary.

THE PEOPLE WANT ACTION

(An Editorial.)

"When are they going to settle the water rate question? That is the constant inquiry that is being heard around Circleville, on downtown streets and in homes and where civic-minded people meet to discuss the welfare of the city.

On Thursday night, E. C. Elliott, of New York, vice-president of the Ohio Water Service company, appeared before City Council again "unprepared," according to his testimony, to furnish the facts and data.

Council, very obligingly, granted him another extension of time.

Perhaps that was all right; The Circleville Herald doesn't say that it wasn't. But one thing is certain:

LET THIS BE THE LAST EXTENSION!

We have seen too many Ohio Utilities cases drag themselves down through the corridors of time, to finally drop dormant forever.

We are reminded again of the fact that Circleville's rate case has already been hanging fire FOR FIVE YEARS!

AND THE DEAR PUBLIC FOOTS THE BILL FOR SUCH INEFFICIENCY!

We're not going to say much more about Circleville's water rate case in the vein that has been assumed since this newspaper first presented its figures.

The Circleville Herald intends to wait and really see whether these figures are presented "within 10 days," whether City Council really tackles the issue at hand THEN, or whether it is going to let the Ohio Water Service company set its own date when it wants to go into the question.

The public is getting sick and tired of domination by certain utilities companies.

And the public which The Circleville Herald represents is going to get protection from The Circleville Herald as long as this newspaper continues, and that will be as long as any utilities company or anything else lasts.

NO IMMEDIATE RELIEF IN OHIO FROM HEAT WAVE

Three Deaths From Weather and One Drowning Are Reported.

No immediate relief from the heat wave which enveloped Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia yesterday, is in sight, the United States weather bureau announced today.

Temperatures soared generally yesterday and last night, particularly in northern Ohio where several deaths were recorded.

Three heat deaths and one drowning occurred in Cleveland. The heat victims were: Robert M. McGee, 45; John Fischer, 56, and Joseph Kotlan, 45.

Charles Nagay, 19, was drowned in Lake Erie. Coast guards were searching for his body today.

Temperatures in the Cleveland area ranged from 87 to 93. In Sandusky a temperature of 90 was recorded.

Eddie Hamm, Georgia Tech athlete, who set a new Olympic record of 7.73 metres (25 feet 4.3 inches) in the broad jump event. Only phenomenal competition can prevent an American victory in this event.

U.S. ANNEXES INITIAL WIN IN TRACK RUN

Former Syracuse Football Star Wins 400-Metre Finals Today.

AMSTERDAM STADIUM, Aug. 3.—Ray Barbuti, former Syracuse football star, won the 400 metre final today, giving the United States its first track victory of the Olympic games.

Barbuti won by a foot, collapsing against the tape.

Ball of Canada was second, and Buchner, of Germany, third. Barbuti's time was 47.8 seconds—two-tenths of a second slower than the Olympic record made by E. H. Liddell of Great Britain at the 1924 games.

Barbuti quickly recovered after the finish and ran from the field. The first victory at flat racing set the Americans wild with joy.

Barbuti drew the pole lane, and overtook the leaders in the stretch and led by two yards when he was fifty yards from the finish line. Ball came on with a terrific burst of speed and nearly caught Barbuti. Buchner was beaten when the pack hit the stretch, and finished third by two yards.

Jackson V. Scholz, New York, veteran American sprinter, who finished in a dead heat with Kornig, the German flash, for third place in the 200 metre final Wednesday, defaulted third place today when officials requested that the tie be run off.

Finnish dominance in distance running was never so strikingly demonstrated as in the 5000 metre final, the first feature of today's Olympic program.

Willie Ritola and Paavo Nurmi so far outclassed the field, including the greatest distance runners from the United States, Great Britain and Sweden, that Nurmi was able to carry out a prearranged plan to turn victory in the 5000 metres over to his countryman who resides in the United States.

No love is lost between Ritola and Nurmi, who wouldn't even speak after they finished one-two in the 10,000 metres Sunday. But the Finnish officials requested Nurmi to see that Ritola won an Olympic championship.

Nurmi obeyed his orders today when he purposely held back to allow Ritola to sprint across the finish line in 14 minutes 33 seconds.

COURTNEY ON SHIP SAILING FOR AMERICA

After Thrilling Rescue In Mid-Sea When His Plane Catches Fire.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Captain Frank T. Courtney, trans-Atlantic flyer rescued at mid-sea yesterday by the S. S. Minnewaska, today sent the following radiogram to the Star:

"We were picked up by the Minnewaska after a terrible experience. Our machine caught fire at midnight at 1,500 feet and landed in flames on a rough sea."

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Their attempt at a trans-Atlantic flight a failure, Captain Frank T. Courtney and three companions proceeded towards New York today aboard the Atlantic Transport Line's Minnewaska after a thrilling rescue in mid-sea.

The fliers had been forced down enroute from the Azores to Newfoundland. But the sturdy Dornier-Napier flying boat rode out the calm waters and about 5 p. m. yesterday the Minnewaska pulled alongside and rescued the four men.

The fliers had ridden out the sea for almost a full 12 hours while some of the great ships of the trans-Atlantic fleet switched from their courses to go to their rescue. The first message of the fliers' plight was received about 8 a. m. Thursday and it took almost nine hours for the nearest boats to arrive.

What caused the sudden landing of the Dornier-Napier machine could not be determined from cables received today but the four men—Courtney, E. H. Gosmer, Fred Pierce and E. W. Gilmore—all were well when rescued.

Courtney started from the Azores at 1:55 p. m. Wednesday, bound for Newfoundland port. He had arrived at the Azores several weeks before from Lisbon. The start was good, the motors of the flying boat functioning well.

Later, Lieut. Paulin Paris, French flyer now at Horta, reported (Turn to page three, please)

FRED STONE'S INJURED WHEN PLANE FALLS

Musical Comedy Star Seriously Hurt When Motor Goes Dead In Air.

GROTON, CONN., Aug. 3.—Fred Stone, musical comedy star, was seriously injured when his airplane made a forced landing near Trumbull field today.

Stone was piloting his own plane to demonstrate it to his daughter, Dorothy, also noted on the stage. The actor took off perfectly, but a few hundred feet in the air his motor went dead and the plane slid off to one side. It crashed in a field adjacent to the air field.

Stone, who has been at his stock farm in Old Lyme, near here, came to the field this morning with Dorothy and a pilot who was to give Miss Stone her first lesson in flying.

Before his daughter made her flight, Stone took the ship up for a trial hop.

Miss Stone saw the plane waver and plunge to earth. The aviator refused to allow her to go to the wreck because of danger that the gas tank would ignite and explode. He rushed to the wreckage and extricated the actor.

A motorist, who was passing the field and witnessed the crash, took Stone to the Lawrence Memorial and Associate hospitals, where physicians at first refused to divulge the patient's condition.

TWO TO BRAVE DANGERS THAT TRIP HARBORS

Without Radio They Will Be Lost To Entire World For Over 30 Hours.

By RALPH HEINZEN
U. P. Staff Correspondent
LE BOURGET AIRDOME, PARIS, Aug. 3.—Heading out to sea in fog and drizzling rain, Majors Louis Idzikowski and Kasimir Kubala were believed today to have passed over the French coastline and to be well over the Bay of Biscay on a flight to New York via the Azores, probably without a stop.

The two fliers, after weeks of preparation, left here at 5:41 a. m. EST (EQ) the French flying smack Pinguin reported that at 2:15 a. m. EST it saw a white airplane—the Marshal Pilsudski, as the Polish plane was named, is white—55 miles off Locort on the French coast. It was too foggy, the ship reported to make out the plane's markings.

LE BOURGET FIELD, PARIS, Aug. 3.—The third attempt at a westward flight across the Atlantic this year was underway today with two veteran Polish army flyers, Louis Idzikowski and Kasimir Kubala, at the controls of a powerful Amiot biplane.

The two men, who left Paris at 5:41 a. m. EST, are hoped of making a short flight to New York. Their attempt is backed by the Polish government.

The start was somewhat sudden. They had been here for several weeks preparing for this flight but had no departure date. They appeared last night at Le Bourget, ordered 1,500 gallons of gasoline into the tanks of the craft, then at dawn rolled 900 yards down the runway and were off.

The plane circled through the hazy dawn over Paris, then passed over Chartres and was lost as the first streaks of day lighted the sky.

For the next 30 or more hours these rather calm appearing Poles will be out of communication with the world. Their craft carries no radio equipment, and the only means of tracing them on this Trans-Atlantic attempt will be through vessels that might sight them.

When their plane—named the "Marshal Pilsudski"—disappeared it was heading towards L'Orient where it is expected to leave the sight of land. The fliers were going in the general direction of the Azores but they planned a non-stop flight to New York.

SAFETY VALVE ON TANK BLOWS OFF WITH BIG NOISE

Explosion at Zenker Bros. Works Is Heard Over Most of the City.

With an explosion that was heard over most of the city, the safety valve on the air tank used in the Zenker Bros., marble and monument works, let go with a bang, late Thursday afternoon.

The rat-a-tat-tat sound as the valve tore through the roof of the building caused many people to think a tornado had struck the city.

The air tank can stand a pressure of 100 pounds, and after it reaches this pressure, the safety cock blows off. Thursday the safety cock failed to work and the pressure was more than the tank could stand.

The damage is small. The tin roof will have to be repaired, and a new safety cock will have to be installed. Harry M. Yeakman, the manager of the branch store here went to Columbus Friday to get a new safety valve. The employees will have a one day vacation.

Temperatures in the Cleveland area ranged from 87 to 90. In Sandusky a temperature of 93 was recorded.

U.S. ANNEXES INITIAL WIN IN TRACK RUN

Former Syracuse Football Star Wins 400-Metre Finals Today.

AMSTERDAM STADIUM, Aug. 3.—Ray Barbuti, former Syracuse football star, won the 400 metre final today, giving the United States its first track victory of the Olympic games.

Barbuti won by a foot, collapsing against the tape.

Ball of Canada was second, and Buchner, of Germany, third. Barbuti's time was 47.8 seconds—two-tenths of a second slower than the Olympic record made by E. H. Liddell of Great Britain at the 1924 games.

Barbuti quickly recovered after the finish and ran from the field. The first victory at flat racing set the Americans wild with joy.

Barbuti drew the pole lane, and overtook the leaders in the stretch and led by two yards when he was fifty yards from the finish line. Ball came on with a terrific burst of speed and nearly caught Barbuti. Buchner was beaten when he packed hit the stretch, and finished third by two yards.

Jackson V. Scholz, New York, veteran American sprinter, who finished in a dead heat with Koring, the German flash, for third place in the 200 metre final Wednesday, defaulted third place today when officials requested that the tie be run off.

Finnish dominance in distance running was never so strikingly demonstrated as in the 5000 metre final, the first feature of today's Olympic program.

Willie Ritola and Paavo Nurmi so far outclassed the field, including the greatest distance runners from the United States, Great Britain and Sweden, that Nurmi was able to carry out a prearranged plan to turn victory in the 5000 metres over to his countryman who resides in the United States.

No love is lost between Ritola and Nurmi, who wouldn't even speak after they finished one-two in the 10,000 metres Sunday. But the Finnish officials requested Nurmi to see that Ritola won an Olympic championship.

Nurmi obeyed his orders today when he purposely held back to allow Ritola to sprint across the finish line in 14 minutes 38 seconds.

COURTNEY ON SHIP SAILING FOR AMERICA

After Thrilling Rescue In Mid-Sea When His Plane Catches Fire.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Captain Frank T. Courtney, trans-Atlantic flyer rescued at mid-sea yesterday by the S. S. Minnewaska, today sent the following telegram to the Star:

"We were picked up by the Minnewaska after a terrible experience. Our machine caught fire at midnight at 1,500 feet and landed in flames on a rough sea."

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Their attempt at a trans-Atlantic flight a failure, Captain Frank T. Courtney and three companions proceeded towards New York today aboard the Atlantic Transport Line's Minnewaska after a thrilling rescue in mid-sea.

The fliers had been forced down enroute from the Azores to Newfoundland. But the sturdy Dornier-Napier flying boat rode out the calm waters and about 5 p. m. yesterday the Minnewaska pulled alongside and rescued the four men.

The fliers had ridden out the sea for almost a full 12 hours while some of the great ships of the trans-Atlantic fleet switched from their courses to go to their rescue. The first message of the fliers' plight was received about 8 a. m. Thursday and it took almost nine hours for the nearest boats to arrive.

What caused the sudden landing of the Dornier-Napier machine could not be determined from cables received today but the four men—Courtney, E. H. Hosmer, Fred Pierce and E. W. Gilmour—all were well when rescued.

Courtney started from the Azores at 1:55 p. m. Wednesday, bound for Newfoundland port. He had arrived at the Azores several weeks before from Lisbon. The start was good, the motors of the flying boat functioning well.

Later, Lieut. Paulin Paris, French flyer now at Horta, re-

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 3.—Funeral services were to be held today for Harry Arons, 36, gassed world war veteran, who fell dead late yesterday as his mother's body was being lowered into a grave at Richmond cemetery.

Heart disease caused by the effects of gas was given as the cause of death. The mother, Mrs. Rachel Katzman, had died after an illness of several months.

Arons was gassed while fighting "Fifth" in the drive on St. Mihiel. He was decorated for bravery under fire.

FRED STONE'S INJURED WHEN PLANE FALLS

Musical Comedy Star Seriously Hurt When Motor Goes Dead In Air.

GROTON, CONN., Aug. 3.—Fred Stone, musical comedy star, was seriously injured when his airplane made a forced landing near Trumbull field today.

Stone was piloting his own plane to demonstrate it to his daughter, Dorothy, also noted on the stage.

The actor took off perfectly, but a few hundred feet in the air his motor went dead and the plane slid off to one side. It crashed in a field adjacent to the air field.

Stone, who has been at his stock farm in Old Lyme, near here, came to the field this morning with Dorothy and a pilot who was to give Miss Stone her first lesson in flying.

Before his daughter made her flight, Stone took the ship up for a trial hop.

Miss Stone saw the plane waver and plunge to earth. The aviator refused to allow her to be to the wreck because of danger that the gas tank would ignite and explode. He rushed to the wreckage and extricated the actor.

A motorist, who was passing the field and witnessed the crash, took Stone to the Lawrence Memorial and Associate hospitals, where physicians at first refused to divulge the patient's condition.

LE BOURGET AIRDOME, PARIS, Aug. 3.—Heading out to sea in fog and drizzling rain, Majors Louis Idzikowski and Kasimir Kubala were believed today to have passed over the French coastline and to be well over the Bay of Biscay on a flight to New York via the Azores, probably without a stop.

The two flyers, after weeks of preparation, left here at 5:41 a. m. EST (EQ) the French fishing smack Pinguin reported that at 2:15 a. m. EST it saw a white airplane—the Marshal Pilsudski, as the Polish plane was named, is white—55 miles off Lorient, on the French coast. It was too foggy, the ship reported to make out the plane's markings.

LE BOURGET FIELD, PARIS, Aug. 3.—The third attempt at a westward flight across the Atlantic this year was underway today with two veteran Polish army flyers, Louis Idzikowski and Kasimir Kubala, at the controls of a powerful Amiot biplane.

The two started from Le Bourget at 5:41 a. m. today (12:41 a. m. EST) hopeful of making a direct flight to New York. Their attempt is backed by the Polish government.

The start was somewhat sudden. They had been here for several weeks preparing for this flight but had no departure date. They appeared last night at Le Bourget, ordered 1,500 gallons of gasoline into the tanks of the craft, then at dawn rolled 900 yards down the runway and were off.

The plane circled through the hazy dawn over Paris, then passed over Chartres and was lost as the first streaks of day lighted the sky.

For the next 30 or more hours these rather calm appearing Poles will be out of communication with the world. Their craft carries no radio equipment and the only means of tracing them on this Trans-Atlantic attempt will be through vessels that might sight them.

When their plane—named the "Marshal Pilsudski"—disappeared it was heading towards L'Orient where it is expected to leave the sight of land. The flyers were going in the general direction of the Azores but they planned a non-stop flight to New York.

Idzikowski and Kubala were at (Turn to page two, please)

SAFETY VALVE ON TANK BLOWS OFF WITH BIG NOISE

Explosion at Zenker Bros. Works Is Heard Over Most of the City.

With an explosion that was heard over most of the city, the safety valve on the air tank used in the Zenker Bros., marble and monument works, let go with a bang, late Thursday afternoon. The rat-a-tat-tat sound as the valve tore through the roof of the building caused many people to think a tornado had struck the city.

The air tank can stand a pressure of 100 pounds, and after it reaches this pressure, the safety cock blows off. Thursday the safety cock failed to work and the pressure was more than the tank could stand.

The damage is small. The tin roof will have to be repaired, and a new safety cock will have to be installed. Harry M. Yeakum, the manager of the branch store here went to Columbus Friday to get a new safety valve. The employees will have a one day's vacation.

BALTIMORE, MD., Aug. 3.—Charles P. Carey and Benjamin F. Spragins, Jr., died on the gallows in Maryland penitentiary here early today for killing Alfred H. Walker, penitentiary clerk, in an attempted break to freedom a year ago.

Carey was calm. Spragins was in a semi-coma. Both took the comforts of religion at the last after saying they would not.

The neck of neither was broken. The rope twisted as they plunged and they slowly strangled.

Carey originally went to prison for acting as "lookout" in a payroll robbery, in which the victim was slain. Spragins was in for larceny. They killed Walker when they tried to shoot their way to liberty.

Piano "Solo" That Had to Be Made Into Duet

Years ago, Busoni, master pianist, was giving a recital in a provincial city. During the performance it became obvious that something was wrong, and at last Busoni stopped playing, wheeled round on his seat, and threw up his arms with a gesture of despair.

There was a consultation on the platform, and the impresario under whose management Busoni was appearing then made a little speech.

"There is one note that sticks," he told the audience. "It will not come up."

He added that it had been arranged for some one to sit by the piano and hit the note each time it stuck.

As may be imagined, the result was hardly satisfactory, but very comical. Busoni's hands, running rapidly over the keyboard and the assistant's fingers, playing wildly, made, from all the time performance, a comedy.

The Portland post who is seeking to attract human readers by first addressing his verses to the lions in a circus is not the last of his kind to hit on a zoological advertisement. General de Nerval sought publicity by appearing on the boulevards with a lion crouched on a lead of ribbon and found that he had judged rightly in thinking people would be curious to sample the writings of a man capable of such an eccentric and novel idea in poets.

Rossetti, too, hit on a similar device and once told a friend he was looking around for a young elephant.

"I mean him," explained the postmaster, "to clean the windows. Then when passers-by see the elephant cleaning the windows they will ask, 'Whose house is that?' and, being told 'Rossetti's,' they will say, 'I think I should like to buy some of that man's pictures.' So they

An instrument has been developed that is so keen and accurate that it will split a hair into 50 equal parts. The machine is known as the microtome and is used principally by scientists in the preparation of specimens for microscopic examination. It is so accurate that it will cut slices one 25-thousandth of an inch. These slices will be absolutely accurate. In using the microtome it is often necessary to freeze, or otherwise solidify the material to be cut. In other cases it is necessary to keep a flow of alcohol running over the knife to prevent particles of material from adhering to the blade.

The Strong Man from Norway was booked on the Orpheum circuit. His specialty was breaking paving stones with a sledge-hammer on his wife's head. It was a vow, as we used to say in the old country. Suddenly his bookings were switched. They put him on the small time, where he had to do four and five shows a day.

He did it for several weeks, then canceled his contract. "What's the matter?" they asked him. "Is your wife getting headaches?"

"Oh, no, it isn't that," apologized the Strong Man. "but I'm afraid she's getting fallen arches."—New York Graphic.

Beheading Ax Unused

Visitors to the British home of ice in Whitehall, London, still see a relic of the Cato street conspiracy in 1820 in a beheading ax which is kept in a glass case. The ax has never beheaded anyone, but it was made to behead the conspirators. The five persons convicted were sentenced to be beheaded in the ordinary way but the authorities decided to hang them first and not take any chances. The beheading was done in public immediately afterward on the scaffold. It was performed with a surgeon's amputating knife by a masked "resurrection man" who was paid 20 guineas for his services.

Then they retired for two hour's rest. They reappeared at 4:30 a. m., seemingly greatly refreshed, and were given a great ovation by a crowd of 250 that had gathered. Included in the crowd was the Polish Ambassador Illinski and members of the embassy staff.

A Polish woman presented the two aviators with a bouquet remarking it was for "good luck." Idzikowski took the pilot's position, handled the instruments for a few minutes and announced his satisfaction with the plan's action. He ordered it taken to the end of the runway and the plane staggered only slightly under the heavy load that it carried.

At the last minute Idzikowski noticed the fuel tank was overflowing and this necessitated some delay while the intake was emptied.

Idzikowski was dressed in a leather coat and wore a stiff white collar. He also wore patent leather shoes. Kubala was dressed in civilian khaki.

Just before the start was made M. Amiot, builder of the neat plane, went up to Idzikowski, embraced him and then in a loud whisper said:

"There's a 10,000 metres landing field at the Azores."

Idzikowski laughed and shook his head.

"He won't need it," he replied. "The motors were warmed-up as the crowd began shouting. The roar was terrific but the crowd's cheers drowned out the throb of the motors that must stand the long test."

Overhead the French airman Demarnier Faivrau, who is attempting a distance record in a small Breugnot plane, circled about waiting to direct the Polish aviators to Chartres.

Finally after the motors had been running 10 minutes the two Poles waved good-bye, gave the motors the full ahead, and started down the runway. The plane wobbled only slightly and at 900 yards rose steadily circled and then at an altitude of 150 metres disappeared over the horizon.

They were assured of good weather between here and the Azores but learned they probably would run into head winds on the last leg of the flight to the United States.

Idzikowski is 36 years old and Kubala 35. The former received his flying license in 1915 and the latter received his a year later.

Where the Shoe Pinched

The Strong Man from Norway was booked on the Orpheum circuit. His specialty was breaking paving stones with a sledge-hammer on his wife's head. It was a wow, as we used to say in the old country. Suddenly his bookings were switched. They put him on the small time, where he had to do four and five shows a day.

He did it for several weeks, then canceled his contract. "What's the matter?" they asked him. "Is your wife getting headaches?" "Oh, no, it isn't that," apologized the Strong Man. "but I'm afraid she's getting fallen arches."—New York Graphic.

Behanding Ax Unused

Visitors to the British home office in Whitehall, London, still see a relic of the Cato street conspiracy in 1820 in a behanding ax which is kept in a glass case. The ax has never behanded anyone, but it was made to behead the conspirators. The five persons convicted were sentenced to be behanded in the ordinary way but the authorities decided to hang them first and not take any chances. The behanding was done in public immediately afterward on the scaffold. It was performed with a surgeon's amputating knife by a masked "resurrection man" who was paid 20 guineas for his services.

There's a big difference in tires, although they all look pretty much alike. Some are made with skimpy, short staple cotton. Some have an overdose of "filler" in the rubber of the tread. Some are long on looks and short on quality.

But you won't need a microscope to be sure that the Goodyear Tire you get from us is a real buy. Goodyear mileages tell the story of "The World's Greatest Tire."

Goodyears are performing so satisfactorily for our customers that they invariably come back—not with a kick but with a boost, and for another Goodyear when they need tire equipment.

BARN AND OTHER BUILDINGS BURN NEAR CLARKSBURG

Struck By Lightning During Severe Electrical Storm Thursday.

During the electrical storm of Thursday afternoon the large barn on the George Pabst farm about one-fourth mile south of Clarksburg was struck by lightning and together with a number of outbuildings was completely destroyed.

At the time of the catastrophe Mr. and Mrs. Pabst and family were in Clarksburg attending the fish-fry and listening to political speeches but reached home in time to prevent the fire from spreading to the home. The wind blew the flames in an opposite direction from the home which aided in keeping the home from being destroyed.

The total amount of Mr. Pabst's loss cannot be fully determined at this time but it is feared that the insurance which he carried with the T. P. Brown Insurance Company of this city, will not fully cover the loss.

The contents of the barn included some farming implements, harness and this year's crop of hay which had lately been harvested. No live stock was in the barn at the time.

Mr. Pabst carried $1,000 on the barn and $800 on contents. The flames and smoke from the burning barn were seen for many miles and attracted crowds who were returning from the celebration at Clarksburg.

Hell, for garage mechanics, will be a land of abundant grease, and no steering wheels to wipe it on. —San Francisco Chronicle.

ported his supply ship had heard the radio of the flying boat in communication with a Dutch steamer.

Then came hours of silence, even though the radio apparently was functioning well.

Early yesterday the world was electrified by word relayed from the Swedish motor ship Gripsholm that she had intercepted a message from the flying boat, saying the craft was down at 42 degrees north, 41 degrees west.

"Need immediate help but in no imminent danger," the message read.

Radios cracked out messages to all vessels in the district. The Cedric and the Celtic of the White Star line were not far away. The Columbus of the North German Lloyd line was within 210 miles of the position named. The Minnewaska was close by. All turned attention, switched their courses, and started with full power ahead to the rescue of the trans-Atlantic plane.

The Thuringia served as relay station for messages between shore and between the boats aiding in this thrilling rescue.

Shortly before 6 p. m. the master of the North German Lloyd liner Columbus radioed the United Press that the Minnewaska had found the Courtney plane at approximately 42 degrees and 27 minutes north and 39 degrees and 5 minutes west.

Then later last night the Radio Marine Corporation received a message from the commander of the Minnewaska which read:

"Rescued Courtney and his crew from plane. All well. Position 42 degrees 27 minutes north latitude, 39 degrees 5 minutes west longitude."

The Minnewaska is proceeding on to New York with her cargo of rescued fliers and is expected to dock Monday.

Courtney had made about 695 miles after leaving Horta, according to the message sent to the Radio Marine Corporation. This position would have placed him about 275 miles southwest of the spot where Commander De Pinedo was rescued when his seaplane, Santa Maria II, was forced down enroute from Newfoundland to the Azores a year ago.

TREATING CHILDREN FOR CROOKED LEGS

Many of These Defects Are Due to Lack of Proper Nourishment and May Be Easily Corrected.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

My mail is filled with letters written by anxious mothers. Today I shall answer one or two of the questions which are so frequently asked. I do this gladly because I can think of no joy equal to that of coaxing a smile to the face of a mother.

Mothers are the greatest and best of all God's creatures, I believe. I have always loved that old saying:

"God couldn't be everywhere, so He made Mothers."

Unfortunately, many a baby suffers from one defect or another. Then the mother is broken-hearted.

Some of these are due to the lack of proper nourishment. Some come from the absence of certain chemical elements essential to perfect development.

Others are caused by too rapid development, or they may result from bad habits. For instance, the child may be permitted to walk too soon. The tiny bones have not grown strong enough to carry the weight of the baby.

Bow-legs and knock-knees are two conditions about which I get many letters.

A perfectly healthy child is not likely to have anything but straight legs. But rickets is a disease which softens the bones and causes deformities. It is a condition much more common than is suspected. This disease and its evil effects will appear if the feeding is not properly conducted.

Dear mother, do not yield to every whim of your child. He must be taught to eat the right things. You are unkind to the little one if you give way to his appeals. He must have the things which will supply the growing elements. If given the wrong foods they destroy his appetite for the more essential and nourishing foods.

Bow-legs may result from using abnormally thick a diaper. If this is the practice after walking begins, the thighs are forced apart and gradually the legs become bowed and perhaps markedly deformed.

It is unwise to hasten the walking. Keep the child off its feet if there is a tendency to knock-knees or bow-legs. The use of massage and gentle pressure several times a day will help straighten the little legs. At most always a slight deformity disappears as the child matures.

Of course if the defect is marked you should talk with your doctor. If he thinks it necessary you will consult a specialist in these troubles.

HEAVY RAIN HITS CLARKSBURG MEET

A heavy rain and wind storm completely spoiled the plans for the all day fish fry and political meeting at Clarksburg Thursday afternoon. A great crowd gathered there at dinner time and most of them were just finishing dinner when the downpour suddenly started.

This had a dampening effect figuratively and literally, but some remained for the speeches. The rain and lightning soon stopped, but the water had left the lanes and ground in such a condition that the machines of those who decided to go home all had trouble getting started.

The air finally cleared however and the speakers made their speeches for the afternoon, although the program that had been planned could not be followed.

Motor cars of high price, such as the Rolls Royce, prize Bijur centralized chassis lubrication as an invaluable feature.

Nash, at moderate price, has it as standard equipment on all "400" Advanced Six Models.

Bijur operation is simplicity itself—and it is invariably efficient regardless of changes in temperature.

There's a lever conveniently placed for your left toe at the floor board.

Simply depress it once and 21 points are automatically oiled, including all spring shackles.

Bother and expense of service station lubrication are eliminated.

Wear at vital chassis points is avoided.

Annoying squeaks and groans are stopped before they start.

The world has a new and finer motor car, with features of excellence hitherto found only on very costly cars. Bijur Centralized Chassis Lubrication is one of them.

BIBLE THOUGHT

A HOPELESS CASE—Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? There is more hope of a fool than him.—Prov. 26:12.

PRAYER—Enable us Lord, to walk humbly with Thee.

BORROWING AND LENDING

One of the essential elements in the instruction given to young people, is thrift. It figures in many school programs, and is much dwelt upon in families. Banks and business houses carry on a constant propaganda to this effect, which is having its effect.

At the same time that this instruction is given, something should be added on the habit of borrowing money, which is carried on by many people as a harmful vice. It takes away their self respect, and destroys their chances for advancement.

In business, loans based on adequate finances are legitimate and the capital of most business concerns is partly made up of borrowed money, which is an essential element of the financial structure of the country. The objectionable thing is the habit of borrowing small sums for personal uses which people should have by thrift.

There are thousands and thousands of people who have got in bad in their home neighborhoods, because they have acquired the habit of borrowing small sums from their friends to tide them over some little difficulty. Some of these folks do not seem to feel the obligation of such debts, and it does no good to dun them. They will never pay.

When people acquire that habit, the word is quietly passed around to look out never to loan them anything.

There are cases of misfortune, where people simply have to borrow of their friends, and where their friends are glad to lend to them, regarding it as probably a gift. This is different from the many people who borrow as the result of too free spending, and because they are trying to conform to a scale of expense that is above their means. Young people should be warned against this practice, which is one of the worst habits they can acquire.

AUTOMOBILE TOURING

The number of people who get out in summer now for automobile tours multiplies every year, and you will need to watch your driving if you venture on the congested motor routes.

With a great number of these people speed and distance covered seem to be the principal end. As they gather on the hotel porches after supper, they do not discuss the economic conditions suggested by the farms, nor the business results indicated by the activity of the factories, nor the social conclusions to be drawn from the homes of the people. Their talk is usually how far they went that day and how long it took them, the troubles they had in a certain city with a traffic officer, etc.

These folks may think they have seen the country, and anyway when they get home, they can say they have been to this and that place. But just how much is added to their intelligence by their way of doing it, is not clear.

Automobile traveling is physically stimulating and restful, and people come home with new ideas they have picked up somewhere. Those ideas are not dependent on the distance they have traveled. The observant person will learn more in a 50 mile journey than the careless sightseer will in 500. To the observant one, every home he sees, every cultivated field, every business center, tell a story of personal characteristics, and he returns with something worth while to talk about.

People should learn from those they meet along the way. If they simply discuss traffic adventures, they might as well be at home. But if they compare ideas and customs, then they return better able to do their daily work, more competent to take their part in the world, and better citizens of Circleville.

MEN'S COATS AND WOMEN'S DRESSES

We hear a great deal these days of woman's fight for sex equality, but there is one point in which woman gets all of the breaks. That is in the matter of hot weather clothes. Custom demands that a man must keep his coat on,

RECIPE

And here's my recipe for Life:
Just do the very best you can,
Forgetting pain and storm and strife,
But carry on your earthly plan.

Be sure and treat your neighbor fair,
Forgetting that perhaps he's wrong;
And fill each molecule of air
Above each day, with cheerful song.

Don't frown because you've lost a fight,
Tomorrow is another day,
So toil again with all your might
And fortune's bound to come your way.

Just cultivate the best in you
Don't let a single hour slip by
But what you've lived a life that's true,
And keep that way until you die!

LETTERS TO EDITOR

PAVING HIGHWAY
South Bloomfield, Ohio,
August 3, 1928.

Editor,
The Circleville Herald,
Circleville, Ohio.
Dear Sir:—

I have read your good editorial entitled "The Scioto Trail," in which you urge the State Highway Department to let a contract for the completion of the Scioto Trail between South Bloomfield and the Franklin County line as early as possible.

I live on this stretch of road and I believe I am safe in saying that every other property owner along the way fully agrees with your position and is ready to put his shoulder to the wheel to get this much needed improvement.

I agree with you that the present road surface is not sufficient to care for the heavy traffic which this road must take. I am also thinking about the question of detouring. It would be much better if both contracts could be completed at the same time so as to avoid detouring again in the future. It also occurs to me that better bids could be obtained now while labor is plentiful and the equipment already on the road than might be obtained later when the equipment would have to be shipped in.

Keep up the good work for the hard surfacing of this important thoroughfare all the way from Circleville to Columbus. It will be one of the best investments the state of Ohio can make.

Yours very truly,
A Herald Reader.

matter how hot the day or how clean his shirt.
"There is hope, however. In Berlin recently a business man, sitting in his office, removed his coat. Then he called his stenographer to take dictation. She took one look at him and fled. Then she fled suit to recover her wages charging that her employer's removal of his coat constituted immoral conduct which compelled her to give up her job.

The court, we are glad to hear, decided against her, ruling that a man's right to escape the heat by sitting around in his shirtsleeves is inalienable.

That's fine. Some day we hope that coats will be laid away when July comes to be donned only on the approach of autumn.

UP 100 STORIES

A New York architect remarked the other day that 100-story office buildings will be relatively common in a few years.

From the structural viewpoint there probably are no obstacles. It has been demonstrated pretty thoroughly that designers can make steel girders go to almost any height.

But there are such grave objections to the 100-story skyscraper that we doubt very much if it will materialize.

Traffic congestion in our major cities is almost unbearable even now. A monster building of 100 stories would treble it. It would concentrate too many people in one spot. The result would be an addition to the traffic stream that would simply paralyze things.

Cities of the future should aim at diffusion of downtown workers, not concentrated. The 100-story skyscraper would be fine to look at, but it would be a distinct menace to the city that built it.

Love's Ecstasy

by May Christie

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty blue-eyed country girl, working as a stenographer in New York, is in love with Gary Chester, young engineer. Alela is living at the home of Marise de Rense, proprietor of the Harvest Moon cabaret. Marise, elderly and hard-working, is infatuated with Clive Mortimer, ne'er-do-well Englishman. The latter petitions Goldie de Rense, young sister of Marise, to join him in a blackmailing scheme.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIX.
"BLACKMAIL!" Goldie slumped low in her seat in the Italian restaurant. Her eyes shot indignant sparks at Clive.

"Don't be a silly child! And, for God's sake, lower your voice!" He whispered, and ordered a second cocktail. "I brought you here for privacy. And now, not only do you misrepresent what I say, but you shout it at the top of your voice!"

"You startled me so!" "But you needn't let the world into our private affairs!" The possessive pronoun made the girl's thoughts swing to Marise. Her older sister was Clive's confidante and friend—not she! Why, then, this rendezvous?

"Haven't you talked your bright idea over with Marise? Did she give you the cold shoulder, that you come to me?"

He hesitated. He was in the elder girl's debt to a far greater extent than Goldie realized. He didn't want to quarrel with his bread and butter. Would it be expedient to be perfectly frank with this pert Miss?

"When our plans are properly developed will be soon enough to tell your sister." That was non-committal.

"Hum. Marise is too honest, you mean? And you think I'm the crooked one?"

This was unpromising. "If you're going to talk that way, all bets are off!"

A waiter came with the second round of cocktails. Goldie, unnerved, and not herself today, drained the glass.

Ah! that was better! Gone was her headache and her lassitude. She felt a sudden sense of gaiety . . . of hovering on the brink of an adventure. . . . She wouldn't snub him any more. . . . She'd draw out Clive!

"Trot out the big ideas to your little friend! You can trust me to keep 'em dark until you give the high-sign!"

Clive hesitated. Marise would certainly put her foot upon his scheme. He must secure Goldie's silence by different tactics.

"We don't want to hurt Marise's feelings. It would be a little

A Calendar Of Ohio Birds

AUGUST

By PROF. ALLEN C. CONGER, of the Department of Zoology, Ohio Wesleyan University.

It would seem that the hot sun of August days here in Ohio might deter even the most eager of travelers from setting out on a journey to tropical regions, but the observant bird student soon notes that the southward trek has really begun before the end of this month. Long before unfavorable conditions should force birds to seek more congenial regions, the bird population shifts to the south. Here in the north, food of all kinds is abundant at this season. Insect life is at flood tide and weed seeds and grain are everywhere available.

Nevertheless, in this land of plenty, the same irresistible wanderlust develops and one by one we must check off many of our feathered friends as they leave us for awhile. In the spring, most of them came with a burst of song and in gay wedding garb; now they steal away quite unheralded and in somber travelling dress.

Already the swallows show signs of unrest and at evening they perch in long line on the telephone wires along our highways. By the month-end most of the graceful barn swallows will have gone from the northern half of the state. The strikingly bi-colored tree swallows have come down from more northern homes to tarry with their Ohio cousins for a few weeks and then all of them will bid us adieu. The little demure Roughwing swallows which nested in the stone abutments of our bridges will leave our quiet streams before September first.

It is to be noted that the swallows are insect-eaters and feed on the wing. Another group of insect-eating birds is now also enroute to the south, for out of the forests of the north have begun to come the warbler hosts. The bird student who found the warblers confusing in the spring time, when in bright plumage and in song, may well despair of identifying some of these fall migrants, for now adults in dull plumage and immature birds adds to the difficulties of study.

During August we welcome the advance guard of many species. The gay Magnolia is here again. The Bay-breasted, in disguise at this season, appears in flocks with the Black-polls. The two are close relatives and betray their kinship by striking similarities in fall dress. The rare Connecticut and Mourning Warblers, both in paler plumage may stop with us for a few weeks. The Wilson, with its pet black cap, and the Canada, both of them with bright yellow beneath, are two more cousins who pay us a call. Some of these will tarry but a few weeks, leaving before mid-September. Other species will perhaps stay until October first, for fall migration dates are not so definitely fixed as are the spring arrival dates we gave some months ago.

Down the river, where the shrunken stream now flows between thickets of water willow, we must say our farewells to the Yellow Warbler, for quite all of them will be gone by the month-end. Nor must we forget the Chat, which has mocked us and whistled to us from the thickets along neglected fencerows. Unlike the other Warblers in size and actions, he carries his individuality clear into migration and books his passage via Mexico rather than by the over-water route across the Caribbean, which most Warblers seem to prefer.

Thousands of miles of land and water stretch before these feathered wayfarers. To the enemies which kill with tooth and claw must be added the hazards of wind and weather. As they face these many perils may we not wish these weak, frail Warblers a bon voyage?

Whoever named near beer was a poor judge of distance.—Ohio State Journal.

 One of the essential elements in the instruction given to young people is thrift. It figures in many school programs, and is much dwelt upon in families. Banks and business houses carry on a constant propaganda to this effect, which is having its effect. At the same time that this instruction is given, something should be added on the habit of borrowing money, which is carried on by many people is a harmful vice. It takes away their self respect, and destroys their chances for advancement. In business, loans based on adequate finances are legitimate and the capital of most business concerns is partly made up of borrowed money, which is an essential element of the financial structure of the country. The objectionable thing is the habit of borrowing small sums for personal uses which people should have by thrift. There are thousands and thousands of people who have got in bad in their home neighborhoods, because they have acquired the habit of borrowing small sums from their friends to tide them over some little difficulty. Some of these folks do not seem to feel the obligation of such debts, and it does no good to dun them. They will never pay. When people acquire that habit, the word is quietly passed around to look out, never to loan them anything. There are cases of misfortune, where people simply have to borrow of their friends, and where their friends are glad to lend to them, regarding it as probably a gift. This is different from the many people who borrow as the result of too free spending, and because they are trying to conform to a scale of expense that is above their means. Young people should be warned against this practice, which is one of the worst habits they can acquire.

AUTOMOBILE TOURING
 The number of people who get out in summer now for automobile tours multiplies every year, and you will need to watch your driving if you venture on the congested motor routes. With a great number of these people speed and distance covered seem to be the principal end. As they gather on the hotel porches after supper, they do not discuss the economic conditions suggested by the farms, nor the business results indicated by the activity of the factories, nor the social conclusions to be drawn from the homes of the people. Their talk is usually how far they went that day and how long it took them, the troubles they had in a certain city with a traffic officer, etc. These folks may think they have seen the country, and anyway when they get home, they can say they have been to this and that place. But just how much is added to their intelligence by their way of doing it, is not clear. Automobile traveling is physically stimulating and restful, and people come home with new ideas they have picked up somewhere. Those ideas are not dependent on the distance they have traveled. The observant person will learn more in a 50 mile journey than the careless sightseer will in 500. To the observant one, every home he sees, every cultivated field, every business center, tell a story of personal characteristics, and he returns with something worth while to talk about. People should learn from those they meet along the way. If they simply discuss traffic adventures, they might as well be at home. But if they compare ideas and customs, then they return better able to do their daily work, more competent to take their part in the world, and better citizens of Circleville.

MEN'S COATS AND WOMEN'S DRESSES
 We hear a great deal these days of woman's fight for sex equality, but there is one point in which woman gets all of the breaks. That is in the matter of hot weather clothes. Custom demands that a man must keep his coat on, no matter how hot the day or how clean his shirt. There is hope, however. In Berlin recently a business man, sitting in his office, removed his coat. Then he called his stenographer to take dictation. She took one look at him and fled. Then she fled suit to recover her wages charging that her employer's removal of his coat constituted immoral conduct which compelled her to give up her job. The court, we are glad to hear, decided against her, ruling that a man's right to escape the heat by sitting around in his shirt-sleeves is inalienable. That's fine. Some day we hope that coats will be laid away when July comes to be donned only on the approach of autumn.

UP 100 STORIES
 A New York architect remarked the other day that 100-story office buildings will be relatively common in a few years. From the structural viewpoint there probably are no obstacles. It has been demonstrated pretty thoroughly that designers can make steel girders go to almost any height. But there are some grave objections to the 100-story skyscraper that we doubt very much if it will materialize. Traffic congestion in our major cities is almost unbearable even now. A monster building of 100 stories would trouble it. It would concentrate too many people in one spot. The result would be an addition to the traffic stream that would simply paralyze things. Cities of the future should aim at diffusion of downtown workers, not concentrated. The 100-story skyscraper would be fine to look at, but it would be a distinct menace to the city that built it.

 A POEM FOR TODAY
 By NORMAN W. RALSTON
 RECIPE
 And here's my recipe for Life:
 Just do the very best you can,
 Forgetting pain and storm and strife,
 But carry on your earthly plan.
 Be sure and treat your neighbor fair,
 Forgetting that perhaps he's wrong;
 And fill each molecule of air
 Above each day, with cheerful song.
 Don't frown because you've lost a fight,
 Tomorrow is another day,
 So toil again with all your might
 And fortune's bound to come your way.
 Just cultivate the best in you
 Don't let a single hour slip by
 But what you've lived a life that's true,
 And keep that way until you die!

 Editor,
 The Circleville Herald,
 Circleville, Ohio.
 Dear Sir:—
 I have read your good editorial entitled "The Scioto Trail," in which you urge the State Highway Department to let a contract for the completion of the Scioto Trail between South Bloomfield and the Franklin County line as early as possible. I live on this stretch of road and I believe I am safe in saying that every other property owner along the way fully agrees with your position and is ready to put his shoulder to the wheel to get this much needed improvement. I agree with you that the present road surface is not sufficient to care for the heavy traffic which this road must take. I am also thinking about the question of detouring. It would be much better if both contracts could be completed at the same time so as to avoid detouring again in the future. It also occurs to me that better bids could be obtained now while labor is plentiful and the equipment already on the road than might be obtained later when the equipment would have to be shipped in. Keep up the good work for the hard surfacing of this important thoroughfare all the way from Circleville to Columbus. It will be one of the best investments the state of Ohio can make.
 Yours very truly,
 A Herald Reader.

Love's Ecstasy
 by May Christie

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.
 ALEDA RAY, pretty blue-eyed country girl, working as a stenographer in New York, is in love with Gary Chester, young engineer. Alela is living at the home of Marise de Rense, proprietor of the Harvest Moon cabaret. Marise, elderly and hard-working, is infatuated with Clive Mortimer, ne'er-do-well Englishman. The latter petitions Goldie de Rense, young sister of Marise, to joint him in a blackmailing scheme.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.
CHAPTER XIX.
"BLACKMAIL." Goldie slumped low in her seat in the Italian restaurant. Her eyes shot indignant sparks at Clive.
 "Don't be a silly child! And for God's sake, lower your voice!" He whispered, and ordered a second cocktail. "I brought you here for privacy. And now, not only do you misrepresent what I say, but you shout it at the top of your voice!"
 "You startled me so!"
 "But you needn't let the world into our private affairs!"
 The possessive pronoun made the girl's thoughts swing to Marise. Her older sister was Clive's confidante and friend—not she! Why, then, this rendezvous?
 "Haven't you talked your bright idea over with Marise? Did she give you the cold shoulder, that you come to me?"
 He hesitated. He was in the elder girl's debt to a far greater extent than Goldie realized. He didn't want to quarrel with his bread and butter. Would it be expedient to be perfectly frank with this pert Miss?
 "When our plans are properly developed will be soon enough to tell your sister." That was non-committal.
 "Hum, Marise is too honest, you mean? And you think I'm the crooked one?"
 This was unpromising.
 "If you're going to talk that way, all bets are off!"
 A waiter came with the second round of cocktails. Goldie, unnerved, and not herself today, drained the glass.
 "Ah! that was better! Gone was her headache and her lassitude. She felt a sudden sense of gaiety, of hovering on the brink of an adventure. . . . She wouldn't snub him any more. . . . she'd draw out Clive!"
 "Trot out the big ideas to your little friend! You can trust me to keep 'em dark until you give the high-sign!"
 Clive hesitated. Marise would certainly put her foot upon his scheme. He must secure Goldie's silence by different tactics.
 "We don't want to hurt Marise's feelings. It would be a little hard to explain to her that a young and very pretty girl—like you—my dear—!—loves his glass he bowed to Goldie—essential for this job. . . . Your sister's all right as a night-club hostess. But she hasn't—fond as I am of Marise, I'm speaking plain business!—she hasn't got the youth or drawing power for this line of work."
 Hawk-like, he watched the effect of his remarks on Goldie. The girl smiled amiably. She was flattered.
 "And Marise, she's got your wide circle of friends?" he added. "That's very important."
 A waiter came for orders. "Unless you eat something, I shan't let you have the wine," said Clive. Goldie gave in. "I'll try to tackle something." She made a pert face.
 When the food was placed before them, and the girl toying with it, Clive unfolded his plan.
 "You want to make a lot of money quickly? Well, here's how!"
 Goldie must start a little flower-shop just off Broadway, he said. The flowers would be the apparent reason of the venture—a sort of "blind," and at the same time a lure for clients (since gentlemen liked to adorn their lady friends with bouquets) but the more profitable source of income would be the private post office at the back of the shop!
 "A private post office?" repeated Goldie, her eyes wide.
 Clive nodded. "You'd rent out little locked boxes to your customers. They'd call for letters at your shop that they wouldn't want to have delivered to their homes or offices, see?"
 "Um! Ah! You mean, love-letters?" A glint of comprehension and excitement came into the green eyes.
 "Not necessarily. A man might be conducting a second business under a different name."
 "Leading the double life, you mean?"
 Clive shrugged his shoulders. This young girl's bluntness was annoying. She would call a spade a spade!
 He'd have to cure her of that tendency, if she was going to run this business at his instigation, and on his behalf!
 "What does it matter whether the locked boxes contain love-letters or business-letters, so long as you are well paid?"
 Goldie was flushed and eager now. "But how would we get our—what did you call 'em—clients? What would be the bait that would lure 'em into the shop?"
 He smiled ingratiatingly.
 "Yourself, for one. What could be more attractive than a beautiful girl set in a power of flowers? And all your girl friends would be dropping in to see you—you know lots of Broadway beauties who'd be a great attraction for the men!"
 They were fixed, in python fashion, on the pretty, greedy little face. "You would make a point, indeed to let them know—this was a delicate moment, he must tread warily—" it would get about in the right quarter that the most attractive girls in the city were in and out of Marigold's Flower Shoppe."
 "Marigold?" She was all excitement.
 "Yes. Nice, simple name. You wouldn't want the name of Goldie de Rense in it. She belongs to the Harvest Moon Club and the cabarets."
 "But I could get customers through the Harvest Moon? We might almost make a—whadda ya call it?—amalgamation?"
 To that Clive gave a negative.
 "Too soon. This venture must be kept mighty private. Right at the beginning, not even Marise is to know. You understand?"
 "But the capital? Where will it come from?"
 Clive said: "I've made an arrangement with a Greek. He'll let you have the flowers on a commission basis. The premises are already his. It was one of his smaller flower shops, but it proved to be a flop."
 "Then why—if I take it on—?"
 Clive cleared his throat impatiently. The flowers will only be a minor issue, don't you understand? You'll have the private post office that'll be worth thousands to you, not to speak of the introductions on which you—er—we will get our commission—"
 "A gold-diggers' rendezvous?" interpolated Goldie. This time, the cocktails and the wine were working potently. She was no longer horrified.
 "Don't call it silly names," admonished Clive. "You'll be a sort of go-between for folks—forward phone messages and mail—and incidentally learn lots of useful secrets and make lots of money!"
 There was no guardian angel there to tell the girl (although Clive knew it) that the "private post office" is utterly against the law!

A Calendar Of Ohio Birds
 AUGUST
 By PROF. ALLEN C. CONGER,
 of the Department of Zoology,
 Ohio Wesleyan University.
 It would seem that the hot sun of August days here in Ohio might deter even the most eager of travelers from setting out on a journey to tropical regions, but the observant bird student soon notes that the southward trek has really begun before the end of this month. Long before unfavorable conditions should force birds to seek more congenial regions, the bird population shifts to the south. Here in the north, food of all kinds is abundant at this season. Insect life is at flood tide and weed seeds and grain are everywhere available. Nevertheless, in this land of plenty, the same irresistible wanderlust develops and one by one we must check off many of our feathered friends as they leave us for awhile. In the spring, most of them came with a burst of song and in gay wedding garb; now they steal away quite unheralded and in somber travelling dress. Already the swallows show signs of unrest and at evening they perch in long line on the telephone wires along our highways. By the month-end most of the graceful barn swallows will have gone from the northern half of the state. The strikingly bi-colored tree swallows have come down from more northern homes to tarry with their Ohio cousins for a few weeks and then all of them will bid us adieu. The little demure . . . Roughwing swallows, which nested in the stone abutments of our bridges will leave our quiet streams before September first. It is to be noted that the swallows are insect-eaters and feed on the wing. Another group of insect-eating birds is now also en route to the south, for out of the forests of the north have begun to come the warbler hosts. The bird student who found the warblers confusing in the spring time, when in bright plumage and in song, may well despair of identifying some of these fall migrants, for now adults in dull plumage and immature birds add to the difficulties of study. During August we welcome the advance guard of many species. The gay Magnolia is here again. The Bay-breasted, in disguise at this season, appears in flocks with the Black-polls. The two are close relatives and betray their kinship by striking similarities in fall dress. The rare Connecticut and Mourning Warblers, both in paler plumage may stop with us for a few weeks. The Wilson, with its pet black cap, and the Canada, both of them with bright yellow beneath, are two more cousins who pay us a call. Some of these will tarry but a few weeks, leaving before mid-September. Other species will perhaps stay until October first, for fall migration dates are not so definitely fixed as are the spring arrival dates we have noted. Down the river, where the shrunken stream now flows between thickets of water willow, we must say our farewells to the Yellow Warbler, for quite all of them will be gone by the month-end. Nor must we forget the Chat, which has mocked us and whistled to us from the thickets along neglected fence-rows. Unlike the other Warblers in size and actions, he carries his individuality clear into migration and books his passage via Mexico rather than by the over-water route across the Caribbean, which most Warblers seem to prefer. Thousands of miles of land and water stretch before these feathered wayfarers. To the enemies which kill with tooth and claw must be added the hazards of wind and weather. As they face these many perils may we not wish these weak, frail Warblers a bon voyage? Whoever named near beer was a poor judge of distance.—Ohio State Journal.

TREATING CHILDREN FOR CROOKED LEGS

Many of These Defects Are Due to Lack of Proper Nourishment and May Be Easily Corrected

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MY mail is filled with letters written by anxious mothers. Today I shall answer one or two of the questions which are so frequently asked. I do this gladly because I can think of no joy equal to that of coaxing a smile to the face of a mother.

Mothers are the greatest and best of all God's creatures, I believe. I have always loved that old saying:

"God couldn't be everywhere, so He made Mothers."

Unfortunately, many a baby suffers from one defect or another. Then the mother is broken-hearted.

Some of these are due to the lack of proper nourishment. Some come from the absence of certain chemical elements essential to perfect development.

Others are caused by too rapid development, or they may result from bad habits. For instance, the child may be permitted to walk too soon. The tiny bones have not grown strong enough to carry the weight of the baby.

Two conditions about which I get many letters, are bow-legs and knock-knees.

A perfectly healthy child is not likely to have anything but straight legs. But crookedness of the bones and causes deformities. It is a condition much more common than is suspected.

This disease and its evil effects will appear if the feeding is not properly conducted.

Dear mother, do not yield to every whim of your child. He must be taught to eat the right things. You are unkind to the little one if you give way to his appeals. He must have the things which will supply the growing elements. If given the wrong foods they destroy his appetite for the more essential and nourishing foods.

Bow-legs may result from using a habitually too thick a diaper. If this is the practice after walking begins, the thighs are forced apart and gradually the legs become bowed and perhaps markedly deformed.

It is unwise to hasten the walking. Keep the child off its feet if there is a tendency to knock-knees or bow-legs.

The use of massage and gentle pressure several times a day will help straighten the little legs. Always always a slight deformity disappears as the child matures.

If course if the defect is marked you should talk with your doctor. If he thinks it necessary you will consult a specialist in these troubles.

HEAVY RAIN HITS CLARKSBURG MEET

A heavy rain and wind storm completely spoiled the plans for the all day fish fry and political meeting at Clarksburg Thursday afternoon. A great crowd gathered there at dinner time and most of them were just finishing dinner when the downpour suddenly started.

This had a dampening effect figuratively and literally, but some remained for the speeches. The rain and lightning soon stopped, but the water had left the lanes and ground in such a condition that the machines of those who decided to go home all had trouble getting started.

The air finally cleared however and the speakers made their speeches for the afternoon, although the program that had been planned could not be followed.

Sport Domination Of U.S. Receives Setback

FAIL TO MARK ONE TRIUMPH ON THURSDAY

But Have Hopes Decathlon Team Will Restore Lost Prestige Today.

BY FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
AMSTERDAM, Aug. 3.—American domination of international sport is slowly receiving a terrific setback here at the ninth Olympiad—with Thursday a day in which not a win was scored in the track and field competition—and fans and coaches hoped the stalwarts of the decathlon team might show in outstanding fashion today.

The decathlon team is minus the bespectacled Harold Osborne of the 1924 games. But in his place there are such all-around stars as Kenneth Dougherty of Detroit, Tom Churchill of Oklahoma, Barney Berlinger of the Pennsylvania State, and James Stewart, husky Californian.

They will have their first test today when five decathlon events are run off.

Main hopes were centered in decathlon team to retrieve United States prestige. There are two other events today—the 400 metres and the 5,000 metres—but there was no great confidence that either event would find the United States flag being hoisted up as winner.

Ray Barbuti, the Syracuse runner, is the main hope in the 400 metres. He showed well in a terrific pace yesterday. But the swift Canadian and German runners appeared even better. Herman Phillips of the Illinois A. C., is still in the 400 but there was little confidence that he would weather the final trial this morning.

Leo Lermond is the best bet in the 5,000 metres but he will be running against the swift Scandinavian runners, who have dominated the long runs in the past few Olympiads and did well to do so again this year. Other United States runners in the 5,000 metres today are Macauley Smith of the Boston A. A., David Abbott of the University of Illinois, and Charles Heworth of Iowa.

The day's program
Decathlon 100 metres.
Decathlon running broad jump
400 metres, final trial.
Decathlon putting the shot.
5,000 metres race.
Decathlon running high jump.
400 metres final.

Thursday was such a failure for the United States team that many of the American fans left the red brick stadium without seeing the finish.

The United States got a total of five points in the men's events. The flags of Sweden, Finland, Germany and Japan were hoisted from the designation poles on the outer wall, where heretofore the Stars and Stripes have held almost complete dominance.

The United States continues well in the lead and probably will not be passed but the showing of the veteran track stars has been discouraging.

It was necessary to go out to the canal to watch an American outstanding victory. That came when the powerful California eight oared crew—the national intercollegiate champion team—defeated Belgium by eight lengths. The big bronzed Californians set a fast pace, pulled away with ease, and finished with a burst of speed that thrilled the onlookers.

CONGRATULATE STAR
OTTAWA, ONT., Aug. 3.—Premier MacKenzie King twice has congratulated Percy Williams, Canadian schoolboy, on his remarkable performances in the Olympic games. The premier cable congratulated when Williams won the 100 metre event and repeated when the youth finished first in the 200 metres run.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

Five years ago Rene Lacoste walked up to his father and said: "Let me play tennis for five years. I will become champion of the world and then quit and devote myself to business."

He did. And now Lacoste has said he will keep the promise he made back in 1923. He does not intend to come to the United States to defend his national singles championship.

His defeat by Big Bill Hilden last week in Davis Cup play may cause him to change his mind, however. If Lacoste were still on top of the heap he would be more inclined to abandon his crown. But in the face of Hilden's triumph such an act is doubtful.

Lacoste is not a gallery player. He is totally lacking in that elusive stuff called color, for the makes the most difficult shots seem ridiculously easy. The Frenchman is the closest approach to the perfect mechanical tennis player the world has even seen.

Faultless Baseline Play
On the court he seems to be made of springs, wry, he skims across the court like an automatic doll. His facial expression never changes. He has even more of a "poker face" than Helen Wills.

Faultless baseline play is the secret of Lacoste's success. There is none of Cochet's beautiful wrist work in Lacoste's game, none of Borotra's furious forays to the net. At times Lacoste appears awkward when making a return, but the ball always streaks back across the net usually to nick the baseline for a point.

Lacoste broke the stout heart of Tilden in the finals of the National tournament last year. Twice the American was within one point of winning a set when Lacoste sent the ball past him like a rocket. Each time the ball splashed squarely into the white line of the sideline. Tilden never had a chance after that. The psychological effect of Lacoste's stolid consistent game is a powerful factor in his victories. Opponents begin to feel that they are battling against a machine and that their cause is hopeless.

Lott Once Beat Him
Long before Lacoste lost to Tilden the former was beaten by George Lott, when the American youngster found a flaw in the great Frenchman's armor.

Lott devoted hours to studying Lacoste's game, and when they met at Southampton last year the Frenchman faced a player who had his number. Lott's idea was that if he could force Lacoste to come to the net, the Frenchman would have no chance to get in his scorching baseline drives. The strategy worked perfectly. Lott spun short shots over the net and drew Lacoste out of position, winning in straight sets.

—Chicago White Sox

The Chicago White Sox made it six straight by defeating the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 3. In the third inning, singles by Clancy and Cissell, a double by Kammand triple by Mostil contributed three runs to Chicago.

Marty McManus' hard hitting enabled Detroit to win over Washington, 5 to 1. His double with two out in the ninth drove in the winning run. In the 12th he scored the winning run after hitting a triple.

Two errors by Jake Flowers in one inning and a home run by Ruggs Stephenson enabled the Chicago Cubs to defeat Brooklyn 3 to 2. McSweeney and Ehlhardt allowed the Cubs five hits while the Robins obtained nine off Hal Carlson.

THE IN GOLF OPEN
MONTAUK BEACH, L. I., Aug. 3.—Joe Turnesa and Willie McFarlane were tied for the lead in the Montauk open with scores of 142.

Earl McElroy, MacDonald Smith and Arthur Deman were four strokes behind him 146.

We'll bet the delegate who staged a one-man demonstration for Al Smith at the recent national prohibition convention, has long been known as the life of the party at home—Ohio State Journal.

The Chicago White Sox made it six straight by defeating the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 3. In the third inning, singles by Clancy and Cissell, a double by Kammand triple by Mostil contributed three runs to Chicago.

Marty McManus' hard hitting enabled Detroit to win over Washington, 5 to 1. His double with two out in the ninth drove in the winning run. In the 12th he scored the winning run after hitting a triple.

Two errors by Jake Flowers in one inning and a home run by Ruggs Stephenson enabled the Chicago Cubs to defeat Brooklyn 3 to 2. McSweeney and Ehlhardt allowed the Cubs five hits while the Robins obtained nine off Hal Carlson.

Sport Domination Of U.S. Receives Setback

FAIL TO MARK ONE TRIUMPH ON THURSDAY

But Have Hopes Decathlon Team Will Restore Lost Prestige Today.

BY FRANK GETTY

(United Press Sports Editor)
AMSTERDAM, Aug. 3.—American domination of international sport is slowly receiving a terrific setback here at the ninth Olympiad—with Thursday a day in which not a win was scored in the track and field competition—and fans and coaches hoped the stalwarts of the decathlon team might show in outstanding fashion today.

The decathlon team is minus the bespectacled Harold Osborne of the 1924 games. But in his place there are such all-around stars as Kenneth Dougherty of Detroit, Tom Churchill of Oklahoma, Barney Berlander of the Pennsy star and James Stewart, husky Californian.

They will have their first test today when five decathlon events are run off.

Main hopes were centered in the decathlon team to retrieve United States prestige. There are two other events today—the 400 metres and the 5,000 metres—but there was no great confidence that either event would find the United States flag being hoisted up as winner.

Ray Barbuti, the Syracuse runner, is the main hope in the 400 metres. He showed well in a terrific pace yesterday. But the swift Canadian and German runners appeared even better. Herman Phillips of the Illinois A. C., is still in the 400 but there was little confidence that he would weather the final trial this morning.

Leo Lermond is the best bet in the 5,000 metres but he will be running against the swift Scandinavian runners, who have dominated the long runs in the past few Olympiads and did well to do so again this year. Other United States runners in the 5,000 metres today are Mauley Smith of the Boston A. A., David Abbott of the University of Illinois, and Charles Haworth of Iowa.

The day's program:
Decathlon 100 metres.
Decathlon running broad jump.
400 metres, final trial.
Decathlon putting the shot.
5,000 metres race.
Decathlon running high jump.
400 metres final.

Thursday was such a failure for the United States team that many of the American fans left the red brick stadium without seeing the finish.

The United States got a total of five points in the men's events. The flags of Sweden, Finland, Germany and Japan were hoisted from the designation poles on the outer wall, where heretofore the Stars and Stripes have held almost complete dominance.

The United States continues well in the lead and probably will not be passed but the showing of the veteran track stars has been discouraging.

It was necessary to go out to the canal to watch an American outstanding victory. That came when the powerful California eight oared crew—the national intercollegiate champion team—defeated Belgium by eight lengths.

The big bronzed Californians set a fast pace, pulled away with ease, and finished with a burst of speed that thrilled the onlookers.

CONGRATULATE STAR

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 3.—Premier MacKenzie King twice has congratulated Percy Williams, Canadian schoolboy, on his remarkable performances in the Olympic games. The premier cabled congratulations when Williams won the 100 metre event and repeated when the youth finished first in the 200 metres run.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

Five years ago Rene Lacoste walked up to his father and said: "Let me play tennis for five years. I will become champion of the world and then quit and devote myself to business."

He did. And now Lacoste has said he will keep the promise he made back in 1923. He does not intend to come to the United States to defend his national singles championship.

His defeat by Big Bill Hilden last week in Davis Cup play may cause him to change his mind, however. If Lacoste were still on top of the heap he would be more inclined to abandon his crown. But in the face of Tilden's triumph such an act is doubtful.

Lacoste is not a gallery player. He is totally lacking in that elusive stuff called color, for the makes the most difficult shots seem ridiculously easy. The Frenchman is the closest approach to the perfect mechanical tennis player the world has even seen.

Faultless Baseline Play

On the court he seems to be made of springs, wiry, he skims across the court like an automatic doll. His facial expression never changes. He has even more of a "poker face" than Helen Wills.

Faultless baseline play is the secret of Lacoste's success. There is none of Cochet's beautiful wrist work in Lacoste's game; none of Borotra's furious forays to the net. At times Lacoste appears awkward when making a return but the ball always streaks back across the net usually to nick the baseline for a point.

Lacoste broke the stout heart of Tilden in the finals of the National tournament last year. Twice the American was within one point of winning a set when Lacoste sent the ball past him like a rocket. Each time the ball splashed squarely into the white line of the sideline. Tilden never had a chance after that. The psychological effect of Lacoste's stolid, consistent game is a powerful factor in his victories. Opponents begin to feel that they are battling against a machine and that their cause is hopeless.

Lott Once Beat Him

Long before Lacoste lost to Tilden the former was beaten by George Lott, when the American youngster found a flaw in the great Frenchman's armor. Lott devoted hours to studying Lacoste's game, and when they met at Southampton last year the Frenchman faced a player who had his number. Lott's idea was that if he could force Lacoste to come to the net, the Frenchman would have no chance to get in his scorching baseline drives. The strategy worked perfectly. Lott spun short shots over the net and drew Lacoste out of position, winning in straight sets.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3—Canadian estimate: Reliable merchants in Canada place prospective wheat yield in three western provinces at about 525,000,000 bushels vs. 415,000,000 bushels last year. The government acreage figures are likely to be revised from 25,400,000, the estimate on June 20, which was nearly a million acres over last year's figures.

Broomhall's report: Better feeling prevails in the world's wheat market but foreign demand is not large. Cash wheat premiums in Canada are much steadier as county deliveries have fallen off somewhat and offerings have become less numerous. Weather in Europe has improved and crop reports are more optimistic.

Manitoba report: Early fields of Marquis are taking color; average 20 bushels. The stand is very good. Wheat is in the milk and soft dough stage. There is very little red rust and no black rust. 3c. v and

HOMER W. WOOD, PUBLISHER OF THE PORTERVILLE (CALIFORNIA) EVENING RECORDER, SAYS:

THAT your home town or your home community grows by its trade area or natural resources and advantages. It does not grow by counties, county government or boundary lines. Therefore, to make your town grow, develop the home industries whatever they may be. A great majority of communities are agricultural. A better and more intensified development of agricultural industries, will then, help your town to grow. Are your ranchers raising the crops from which they can get the most out of the land? Do your home merchants buy all they can from the ranchers? Perhaps the subdividing of land into small ranches will serve to bring more people. In turn this will mean more business and more industries in town. If you do not like your Chamber of Commerce, get into it and fight for and with it. If the leadership is wrong, change it. Is your Chamber of Commerce doing the real constructive development work it should? If not, then use your head and figure out what it should do in the way of working out a development program. Put some constructive ideas of what your community needs in writing; give them to your Chamber of Commerce. If the Chamber of Commerce does not act, give them to your home town newspaper. Your newspaper will carry the message to the people. When you criticize, however, be sure you have a remedy. Planning towns are few. You cannot get factories to locate in a town that is not a logical factory site. By developing the land around about in the proper manner, or by raising crops that must go through a packing house in town, you are getting more people to your town by the right kind of development. Each town or community has its own problems of development. Oftentimes it is worth while to hire an expert to advise. An outsider looking in may have some new ideas unknown to an insider looking out.

"BLAZING TRAILS"

AT THE MET

A slice of life, served from any one of a hundred cities—served with heart interest—flavored with drama—spiced with humor—a dish of America—one of the most human stories on the screen—that, in short, is the essence of King Vidor's "The Crowd," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture now playing at the Metropolitan theatre.

This photoplay comes very near telling the real history of the life of the great-American middle class and it is a genuine "big parade of peace times." The principal characters may be any one of the hundreds of thousands of Americans struggling for a living. Eleanor Boardman and James Murray have the leading roles, supported by a large cast of popular players.
